FRANK L. SWEATT, Treasurer.

SCHOOL REPORT.

FELLOW-CITIZENS: The whole appropriation for schools for the town of Webster during the last school year was $764.62, of which $67.10 was from the literary fund, and $12 dog tax. Eight schools were taught, averaging 17.36 weeks of five days each. Average salary of teachers per month, including board, $20.34. Whole number of scholars enrolled, 94. Averaging expense of "current expenses" for each enrolled scholar, $8.771.

Thirty-three visits were made by your committee and 222 by parents and friends.

DISTRICT NO. 1.—Sweatt's Mills.

Miss Detta M. Goodhue, teacher. Length in weeks, 8; wages per month, including board, $16; whole number of pupils, 7; average attendance, 6.65.

Winter term, same teacher. Length in weeks, 7.8; wages per month, including board, $16; number of pupils, 8; average attendance, 7.38.

We found the pupils of this school quite young, but well cared for. Miss Goodhue is a young lady of scholarly habits, and peculiarly adapted to "little folks." She gains and retains the respect and love of those under her charge, which, combined with her thoughtful manner of imparting instruction, always produces good results.

DISTRICT NO. 2.—Pleasant Street.

Summer term, Miss Cora E. Putney, teacher. Length of school, 7 weeks; wages per month, including board, $18; number of pupils, 11; average attendance, 7.

Winter term, same teacher. Length of school, 7 weeks; wages per month, including board, $20; number of pupils, 14; average attendance, 13.

Miss Putney has had considerable experience as a teacher. She labors earnestly and untiringly for the advancement of her pupils. At every visit made we found the school orderly, and at the close of both terms evidence of real progress made.

District No. 3.—Corser Hill.

Summer term, Miss Mary R. Webster, teacher. Length in weeks, 10; wages per month, including board, $20; number of pupils, 14; average attendance, 13.

This school stands high in scholarship. Composed mostly of young ladies whose minds are ever on the alert for knowledge, assisted by one of our most skilful teachers, as Miss Webster is known to be, there could not be otherwise than rapid progress. The committee were much pleased on examination day in witnessing what had been accomplished.

Winter term, Miss Harriet L. Pervier, teacher. Length in weeks, 11.8; wages per month, including board, $24; number of pupils, 15; average attendance, 14. This district was again fortunate in securing the services of Miss Pervier as teacher. Although a stranger, she soon won the respect of pupils and parents by evincing a love for her work, which with a mind well disciplined, and methods of teaching improved by normal-school training, at once made attractive and delightful the pathway to progress. Those who know the way are safe guides.

District No. 4.—Battle Street.

Fall term taught by Miss Rose Wooster and Miss Mary A. Stevens. Length in weeks, 13; wages per month, including board, $19.80; number of pupils, 8; average attendance, 6.

The first part of this term was taught by Miss Wooster, who, having a previous engagement in another school, left its completion to Miss Stevens. Both of these young ladies had before taught in this district—Miss Wooster two terms. At the close of the portion of the term taught by the latter, owing to circumstances for which the teacher was not responsible, only a part of the pupils were present, but those that were passed a most excellent examination, reflecting great credit upon scholars and teacher. Your committee were unable to be present when the school finally closed, but from a knowledge of Miss Stevens as a teacher, we have no doubt that the warm words of commendation from all that were present were fully merited.

District No. 6.—Little Hill.

Summer term, Miss Emma P. Fitz. Length in weeks, 8; wages per month, including board, $20; number of pupils, 5; average attendance, 5.

Winter term, same teacher. Length in weeks, 10.8; wages per month, including board, $20; number of pupils, 7; average attendance, 6.

During the summer term there was not one mark upon the register. The promptness of the pupils and the interest they manifested in their studies could not fail to produce the best results. Miss Fitz has such qualifications for an instructor of youth, by nature and by culture, as well fit her for school labor. She has the happy faculty of governing without scolding, and awakening thought in the mind of the pupil by the reflex influence of her own.

District No. 7.—White Plain.

Miss Mary Austin, teacher. Length in weeks, summer term, 7; wages per month, including board, $16; number of pupils, 7; average attendance, 3.

Winter term, same teacher. Length in weeks, 7; wages per month, including board, $16; number of pupils, 5; average attendance, 4.5.

The teacher seemed anxious for the welfare of those under her care. Most of those pupils who were present during both sessions made good progress. Little Charlie Corser deserves special mention.

District No. 8.—Bashan.

Summer term, Miss Stella G. Wright, teacher. Length in weeks, 8.6; wages, including board, $24; number of pupils, 17; average attendance, 14.

Winter term, same teacher. Length in weeks, 11; wages, including board, $24; number of pupils, 21; average attendance, 18.

Miss Wright is comparatively a young instructor, but brings to the work cheerfulness, energy, and a well informed mind. Some of the pupils did remarkably well; others did well;—and if there were any who did not advance as much as they might, it certainly was their own fault—not that of others.

District No. 9.—Putney.

Summer term, Miss Gustie Stone, teacher. Length in weeks, 9; wages, including board, $20; number of pupils, 13; average attendance, 12.

Miss Stone's quiet manner in the school-room exerts a like effect upon her pupils. Satisfactory evidence of good work done was shown to the committee at the final examination; also to the parents, many of whom were present, who were anxious to retain her services for the winter.

Winter term, Miss Mary R. Webster, teacher. Length in weeks, 11; wages, including board, $26; number of pupils, 19; average attendance, 16.

We seldom visit a school where answers are so promptly and correctly given as at the closing examination of this term. The power of inciting scholars to earnest and persevering labor in performing the tasks set before them is an excellent qualification for a teacher. Miss Webster possesses it.

Considering the limited number of weeks for school, as much progress has been made as could reasonably be expected. All of the teachers had had more or less experience, and exhibited such faithfulness and zeal in their work as to command the approval and kindly words of all who were specially interested.

The introduction of a new arithmetic, to take the place of arithmetics by six different authors, adds greatly to a better classification of our schools in that branch.

The new physiology, by its simplicity and the instruction it gives, according to the legislative demand, of the uses of alcohol and tobacco, is something for which every parent and every citizen should be thankful.

For us in New Hampshire this year closes a "school system" that has been in vogue for nearly a century. We believe it has done its work, and that a step in the right direction has been taken. Fifty years ago, when there were a dozen children to each family, the "district system" doubtless was the best. But with the present limited number, and in some towns where one fifth of the adult population is in a state of celibacy, a more concentrated system is certainly desirable.

Our common-school system, once the best, is now the poorest, when applied to any of the country towns of our Northern states; and the reasons are, a lack of funds and a proper control of school affairs. The state has wisely passed a law allowing three citizens, elected by the people, to perform the important duties that now devolve upon many who are either incapable or surprisingly indifferent to the trusts conferred upon them. The concentration of power is parallel to allowing three men the control of town affairs.

The appropriation of funds is left, indirectly, to the town itself. Those most conversant with school matters are well aware that twenty-five pupils under one instruction give better satisfaction to scholars and teacher than would half of that number. Instead of the town of Webster maintaining eight schools, it would subserve the interests of all parties better to reduce the number to about one half, thus averaging about twenty-five to each division.

The supposed real objection, that of conveying children to school, vanishes when we consider that they are seldom inactive, —that the exercise of walking is no more injurious than that of play. A poor school in the "door-yard" is less help to property valuation than a good school a mile away.

What shall we gain by the change? Better qualified teachers, longer terms, and in some cases graded schools. The first element of a good school is a good teacher. By proper remunerative inducements, young ladies will gladly fit themselves, by normal-school training and otherwise, to more worthily fill the teacher's chair, thus helping to raise the profession to the rank it justly deserves.
